Former South Carolina Politician Charged With Stealing Money.

Franklin J. Mosos, at. ex-Governor of South Carolina, who, thirty years ago, was one of the most-talked of politicians of the South, appeared in the District Court at East Boston March 7th, charged with larceny. Mr. Moses has been a resident of Winthrop, Mass., for the past eight years. It is due to his activity during the last municipal campaign that he was in court. The charge against him is that he misappropriated money that was put into his hands to give some one else. The complainant in the case is Edward Thurston, who managed the campaign of one of the successful candidates.
